The most important thing I learned/experienced today was...

- behaviour and bad language
- looking deeper into child's life to find the cause of the behaviour
- to asses problems on a broader scale
- everything that was asked
- deal with different situations
- very good
- how to deal when problems arise
- assessment
- how to use new tools in my day to day job
- intervention, asses the child
- the bio-psycho-social approach to assessing children
- I found all the information extremely important. I will use it all *fantastic speaker
- that I can use different tools to work with parents. Also that other teachers are experiencing school age behaviour problems
- behavioural strategies on managing behavioural kids
- the behaviour chain
- the A-B-C-D-E behavioural guide, and how to deal with the behaviour
- early intervention is really important

I can use this information in my workplace to...

change some of the children's behaviour

- help me manage behaviour
- assist my children with child care
- manage the behaviour in my schoolage program
- improve the classroom
- control different group sizes
- better to communicate with the parent
- find out why behaviours are happening
- help other staff with behavioural problems in S/A programs
- prevent problems from happening
- better understand the cause of their behaviour and to come up with a better intervention
- assist me, the child and parents . I will also share information with other workers
- photocopy the articles that were given. The website will come in handy at school
- help children with some of their behaviours and help some parents to work with their children at home so that the child will have more consistently
- help redirect children to "better" activities
- help staff work on assessing and changing techniques
- calm and redirect my kids (gr.4+5)
- help certain children with compliance
- yes
- avoid parents using 123 magic

It may be difficult for me to use this information in my workplace because...

- n/a
- parents may not want to listen
- we are not given the child's outside info, such as family problems
- we don't know the outside information

-it will not be

-some parents may not be responsive but I will be persistent

-I may not get cooperation from parents because they may not want to share situations a child is dealing with

n/a

-I am a new employee and my room partner has her own way

-we have tried many of these ideas. New employee- quiet "touch and go"

n/a

-its more for school age children
